Iggy Manley is getting back from favorite hobby, lifting logs in a forest early in the morning. His usual plan is to go to the gym after this.

However, classes are starting today, and he needs to know if he has enough time to go before he has to go to class.

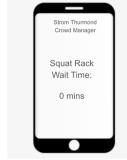

He checks the Strom Thurmond Crowd Manager app and sees that the wait time for a bench is a little longer than usual.

Logically, Iggy skips his class because he cares little for education, only his gains. His GPA can't go any lower, he figures.

However, he sees that the squat racks aren't currently being used.

He dry-scoops preworkout in his car before heading in and doing squats, knowing now that he's going to hit legs instead of chest (he hates legs).

Aine had never really been in good shape, but he certainly wanted to change that... the problem was that he didn't really have the time to sit around and wait to use the equipment on the busier days.

And it seemed as though the gym was ALWAYS busy whenever Aine tried to head in between classes.

Then one day, while studying in the library, Aine heard an ad between songs... something about an app to view wait times for the gym? That sounded perfect!

Aine quickly clicked the ad and read through some reviews for the app. It seemed legit enough so he went on to test it after his study session.

Sure enough, the app alerted Aine to a lull in activity at the gym and he was able to jump straight into an exercise!

And just like that, Aine was able to fit a workout routine into his daily schedule.

Stephan is a college student at the University of South Carolina. Stephan majors in computer engineering.

Stephan is a busy college student and doesn't have time to waste. Whenever Stephan goes to the gym, he doesn't want to be bothered.

Whenever Stephan goes to Strom Thurmond, it is always busy. There are always people either playing around on the racks or they just not doing anything.

Stephan has had a long day of classes and don't want to be bothered at the gym. He walks into Strom and sees a crowd of people.

Stephan sees all the people and storms out of Strom. He gets in his car and drives off furious. He goes on twitter and ask for gym suggestions.

Stephan gets recommended to so many gyms and starts to visit them.

Stephan finally finds his gym and is the happiest person alive.

Larry is a new student at the University of South Carolina. He has become stressed out and wants to go to the campus gym to relieve some of his stress through exercise.

However, when he arrives at the gym he notices that every single machine is taken and there is a line for others. Larry realizes that he will spend more time at the gym than he expected. This stresses larry out even more.

On top of the stress from school, and waiting in line at the gym. Larry is an introvert and does not like being in crowded spaces. So working out in a room full of people is not something that he likes to do.

Larry thinks to himself, "man if only there was a way that I could know how busy the gym is by just clicking a button, that would be so awesome. I could save so much time and I would workout a lot more often."

A friend recommends he download this new app. With the click of a button it allows you to see the capacity of the gym in real time. Larry downloads it immediately and the app works great. He sees the gym is not busy at all and he heads to the gym for a stress free workout.

Larry uses the app every single time he works out. It changed his life and he is now a much happier and healthier person.

We have Jim, he's a very lovable guy and loves to hit the gym in between his job and social life.

but oftentimes he finds that the gym is far too busy for him when he visits.

What he needs is an app that can tell him how busy or empty the local gyms are:

He also found out this same app can reserve spaces for him to use equipment, lockers, and classes online

Smile and carry weights.

Jim is now able to get shredded and still have time for his evening yoga classes while still making that ice cream social.
